Foreword

BASEC certification services are designed to provide independent third party assessment of cable and ancillary products. The Scheme Regulations are described in a document available from BASEC offices.

A licence is normally granted for the whole range of constructions relating to one cable type. Where a manufacturer does not produce a whole range of constructions relating to one type, it may apply for a licence for a limited range.

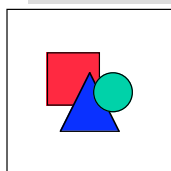

After the issue of a product licence all subsequent licensed production of that cable should incorporate BASEC marking.

Application for Services

Applications for a Product licence or other services should be addressed to the BASEC office. Application forms and fees will be provided

Certification Trade Mark

Use of the BASEC Certification Trade Mark for Product Licensing allows the manufacturer to use the appropriate British Approvals Service for Cables Trade Mark on cable reels, labels, etc and products. Its method of use is subject to approval by BASEC.
